

Richard Thame

Chief Executive Officer, Australia and New Zealand

Richard joined Aramex in January 2016 after its acquisition of Fastway Couriers in Australia and New Zealand. With over 20 years of professional experience, he brings to his current role a wealth of knowledge in logistics, ecommerce and franchising.

Richard is responsible for leading the company's strategic direction across Australia and New Zealand. He is also responsible for leading all day-to-day management decisions, and for implementing the company's long and short term plans across Fastway's franchised network.

Before being appointed to his current role, Richard was the Chief Executive Officer of "Fastway Couriers" in Australia from 2009 - 2016, where he played a key role in the development and ongoing success of the company in the Australian market.

Prior to joining Fastway Couriers, Richard was the Commercial Director at Sabre Pacific, where he was responsible for driving the sales and marketing strategy for the world's largest provider of online travel distribution systems.

Throughout his career, Richard held numerous senior management positions across a range of service industries including global brands such as McDonalds Australia; Greater Union Cinema Group; Brambles Australia; and Thrifty Car Rental.
